Mrs. Lawrence remained with friends in Marshfield, Barre and Montpelier during the three weeks they were absent from town.

Five Rules For Women Talkers.

In the November Woman's Home Companion a contributor advises women on talk. Five rules are laid down:

1. Don't tell long stories, or even short ones, unless you have an especial gift for it.

2. Remember that talking about yourself is an indulgence, and, as such, should be strictly limited.

3. If another woman tells you of some sensation or experience of her own, don't immediately cap it with one of yours. "Swapping tastes" is of the lowest order of conversation. I have been in circles where the talk consisted in each woman's taking her turn in telling how she thought or felt about some commonplace subject, such as the digestibility of shell fish, or liability to colds.

4. Never lose consciousness of the proportion of the talk you are usurping, and, if you are taking more than your share, be sure that the quality matches the quantity.

5. Discriminate always between talk for your own pleasure and talk for your friends. People constantly tell the saddest anecdotes because these have become charged with some extraneous charm impossible to transmit. Perhaps the occasion when it took place was important because some particular person was there, and every detail of it has taken on a radiance visible only to the narrator.

Stops Lameness

Sloan's Liniment is a reliable remedy for any kind of horse lameness. Will kill the growth of spavin, curb or splint, absorb enlargements, and is excellent for swellings, fistula and thrush.

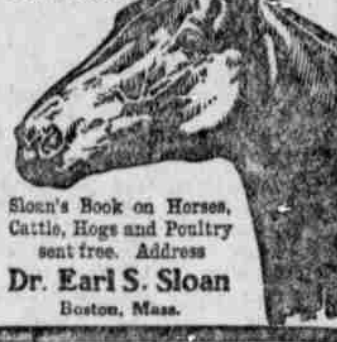

Here's Proof.
"I used Sloan's Liniment on a mule for 'high lameness,' and cured her. I am never without a bottle of your liniment. Have bought more of it than any other remedy for pains." Daily Kibby, Kentucky.

"Sloan's Liniment is the best made. I have removed very large shoe boils off a horse with it. I have killed a quarter crack on a mare that was awfully bad. I have also healed raw, sore sores on three horses. I have healed green heel on a mare that could hardly walk." Anthony G. Hyatt, Oakland, Pa., Route No. 1.

SLOAN'S LINIMENT

is good for all farm stock.
"My horse had hog cholera three days before we got your liniment, which I was advised to try. I have used it now for three days and my horse is almost well. One hog died before I got your liniment, but I have not lost any since." A. J. McCarthy, Iadville, Ind.

RANDOLPH.

Sherburne D. Hutchins, Aged 85, Died Sunday and Buried Tuesday.

The death of Sherburne D. Hutchins occurred Sunday morning, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Flint, after an illness of about a week. Mr. Hutchins reached the age of 84 years October 5 and for several years had been failing in strength and not able to engage actively in his place. Mr. Hutchins was born in Manchester, N. H., but when twelve years of age he went to Boston to reside, but for the last twenty years he had lived in this town. Mr. Hutchins was twice married and is survived by one son, Charles R. Hutchins, the son of his first marriage, and his second wife and one daughter, Miss Mildred Hutchins, who lives here with her mother. The remains of Mr. Hutchins were taken to the home on Central street, and a funeral was held from there on Tuesday at half past eleven, Rev. Fraser Metzger officiating. The body was taken to South Royalton for interment, the widow and daughter accompanying the remains. The bearers here were Mason Esterbrook, F. A. Phillips, D. D. Howe and Henry Johnson. Deceased was formerly a member of the old Christian church of this place, but later had attended the Methodist church as long as his strength would allow.

Mrs. Ernest Sargent accompanied her sister, Miss Alice McIntyre, from Woodsville, N. H., Tuesday, for the first time since the death of her mother, several weeks ago.

Dr. C. J. Rumrill entertained the University club on Monday night at the home of E. W. Tewksbury, when fourteen members and friends were present to enjoy the six o'clock dinner. Principal E. G. Ham was to have given the paper at this meeting, but this was postponed, to give all the privilege of attending the entertainment in Music hall.

While Myrtle and Zilpha Rye were out driving on Sunday afternoon, the horse became frightened and unmanageable and ran, throwing them out of the carriage. Miss Myrtle suffered a broken arm, besides several other slight injuries. It is thought that some part of the carriage hit the horse's heels, and it was impossible for the one driving to control the horse.

ALL DRUGGISTS

Think not we're caviling sourly at city life. Nobody's fonder of cities than we. Still, it is wearing, a grim and a gritty life. Once in a while it is pleasant to flee, far from the heat and the noise and the hurrying. Out where the restful old camp is our home. Where the birds chatter and squirrels are as busy as we. Here, where no white lights make glare of the gloam.

Here for a time—like a couple of savages—We can be free of pretense and disguise. We can recoup from the frets and the ravages Which have drawn circles of blue round our eyes: Here is the scent of the pines in the breeze again, Here is the sunshine to paint us with tan, Under the sky and the sun and the trees again, Gee, but it's good to a wearied man!

MAGAZINE REVIEW

President Taft's Look into the Future.

President Taft, writing of "The Dawn of World Peace," in the November Woman's Home Companion, takes the following position with relation to the arbitration treaties now up for adoption between England, France and the United States:

"With the ratification of the treaties with Great Britain and France, we may hope that treaties with other nations will follow. After a time, if our treaties stand the test of experience and prove useful, it is probable that all the great powers on earth will come under obligation to arbitrate their differences with other nations. Naturally, the smaller nations will do likewise, and then universal arbitration will be more of an actuality than an altruistic dream."

Ewa Earns Ninety Per Cent. a Year on Original Investments.

In "Wonderful Hawaii," the first of a series of absorbing articles on the peculiar social and political conditions of our island territory, in the November American Magazine, Ray Stannard Baker tells the marvellous story of the domination of the sugar barons in Hawaii. The story of one plantation is typical:

"Let me tell the story here of Ewa plantation, which, while it is not the largest, is one of the most successful in the islands. It was established about twenty-two years ago. The original investors capitalized the venture at $500,000. Later they had to assess themselves for $300,000 more, so that the stock in Ewa, with a par value of $25 a share, finally cost $1,000,000. Beyond this, in the early days, they had, of course, to borrow largely, but those amounts were soon paid off. By 1896 the company had grown very profitable. It earned for a time five per cent. a month on the existing capitalization. It then pursued the course which many of the plantation corporations of the islands have followed; it issued a series of stock dividends. That is, it presented its stockholders with so much additional stock free of cost. To-day, without another cent in cash having been added, the capitalization is $5,000,000, on which the corporation is paying eighteen per cent. a year dividends. In other words, the original owners of the stock have seen their investment increase fivefold, and on that fivefold increase they are now receiving eighteen per cent. a year. This is the equivalent, for all the original investors, of ninety per cent. a year. Moreover, the stock in Ewa, with a par value of $25 a share, sells at $32. Is it any wonder that they talk of the success of the system in Hawaii?"

From the glorious cover showing in colors a branch of beautiful Ben Davis apples, to the very last page, Suburban Life for November is replete of the out-of-doors that the country minded can best appreciate, but which appeals to urban and suburban dweller alike.

"How to Conduct a Village Pageant" contains some sage advice to those who think they are "going back to the land." "The Anchor That Came to Eden" tells of a home that had a need—a wee little one—and how it was filled. Eminent practical is "Three Things to Make in Your Own Workshop." In "The Mania for Cutting Down Trees," city officials who make straight streets at the expense of beauty, are criticised.

"The Suburban Woman and the Problem of Manners" is a strong and timely article for all who love and have to do with children. There are a score more articles on various aspects of life in the beautiful suburbs that are the best part of our American cities.

President Benton Makes Wise Suggestion.

President Benton of the university of Vermont, in addressing the students of the medical college at the opening of that department of the university on Monday, is reported among other things to have said:

"I hope the day will come when a baccalaureate degree will be required of the man entering upon the studies of the medical profession."

If by "a baccalaureate degree," Dr. Benton means a completion of the usual college course, there can be no question that such a condition should be insisted upon for entrance to the medical college. Most of the great medical schools insist upon it, and the rank of the state university is sufficient to warrant the condition. As a rule, the boy who has only the high school or academy education, has not reached the necessary stage of preparation for the special course designed to fit him for a great profession, be that profession medicine, law or any other. It is to be hoped that Dr. Benton may bring about the raising of the standard in question.—Rutland News.

Under the Sky.

Under the sky and the sun and the trees again, Back to the shack and the tipsy canoe, Isn't it good to know pleasures like these again, Here where the lake glimmers coolly and blue?

Putting on any old thing that we own, Here where we dress—if it suits us to—Working or taking things easily, lazily, Nobody caring how frowsy we've grown?

Think not we're caviling sourly at city life. Nobody's fonder of cities than we. Still, it is wearing, a grim and a gritty life. Once in a while it is pleasant to flee, far from the heat and the noise and the hurrying. Out where the restful old camp is our home. Where the birds chatter and squirrels are as busy as we. Here, where no white lights make glare of the gloam.
